A Mid-Century Modern home that surely lives up to its iconic era. In 1956, architect Harold Wong designed and brought to life this inviting MCM home. This property welcomes you with casual elegance. No expense was spared in sourcing the best quality materials for this house and it includes many modern features that were considered well ahead of their time. Enjoy the stunning fireplace built with stones hand selected from around B.C., a main floor that boasts mahogany walls and doors, a yellow cedar ceiling, and all of this is enhanced by floor to ceiling windows. In addition all systems and appliances in the home have been updated to current standards. Adding onto this home's impressive resumé, the landscaped grounds were designed by renowned landscape architect, Clive Justice, best known for his design of UBC Botanical Gardens. Relax in tranquility beside your multilevel waterfall that meanders throughout the fully developed garden bed into the cement pond. Towering trees alongside fully fenced backyard provide a lovely view and privacy.
